

Two Headed Nails by Pat Conover

Two headed nails are harder to drive than calipers to measure acreage of the human eyes scanning the moment, timespinning, hoping and collapsing, melting, retiring to the compression of negated black oil drums recycled with water for the sun's rays to renew in heat and prepare for the giving off of warmth