

Kate Cudlipp: Born To Do This

June 30, 2002

I do not believe we can define “call” clearly and finally. I think it is one of those concepts so intimately connected to God’s movement in our lives that to tie it to a strict definition would be blasphemy. One thing we can say is that call is about how we are present and active in the world; call is about doing.